Vermonters here and elsewhere will congratulate Gov. Henry C. Ide upon his appointment as minister to the court of Madrid. The appointment came directly from the President who recognized his ability while they served the government together in the Philippines. Gov. Ide will make a highly creditable representative at one of the most brilliant courts on the continent.

"Bon voyage" to Col. Roosevelt as he starts on his well-earned vacation. He has a great hunting trip in prospect and here's hoping his plans will mature and that he will return in due time with renewed vigor and inspiration for the joyous life of which he is such a pronounced type.

PRESS COMMENT.

Ed. J. Appolt, editor and owner of the Gazette at Hardwick, Vt., has been passing a few days in Port Allegany, guest of his brother, George Appolt. Editor Appolt is enroute from Washington, where he has been in attendance at the inauguration ceremonies. Ed. is some bigger than when he first started to learn the printing business with the writer in the old Reporter office on Main street, now fast going into decay, about sixteen years ago. He has never worked in any other printing office but this and the one he now owns where he worked under the writer's tuition for two years. He not only made one of the best printers in Vermont, but he also learned how to run a country printing and newspaper office to the good without sniveling or doing his friends from a charitable standpoint. No better country printing office in Vermont than he owns and on which no one has a string financial or otherwise. He recently moved his plant into a fine two-story and basement building, especially prepared for it, also owned by him. He is a prominent Vermont Mason and has passed the chairs in his own lodge. The Reporter has only best wishes and hope for his futher success .- [Port Alleghany (Pa.) Reporter.

The death of Judge Henry C. Bates, a former Lieut. Gov. of this state, causes many expressions of sorrow among Vermonters, with whom he had a wide ac quaintance. He was highly regarded by all, and when he went to Mamla a few years ago it was hoped that he would again take up his residence in this state. His health was such, however, that he located in California hoping that mild climate would be of benefit to him. He was an able lawyer and served his state well in many prominent positions. "None knew him but to love him" may truly be said of Judge Bates .- | Morrisville News and Citizen.

Scientific Temperance Instruction.

The March number of the Vermont Home Guards contains the following letter from Mrs. Ellen B. Turner which is of much interest: DEAR EDITOR OF HOME GUARDS:-

Permit me to use a little of your space, as I wish to speak of the work which has been engrossing the attention of the members of our organization for some

I was greatly disappointed at the failure of our Legislature to pass the educapushed during the session. There were some features of the bill which I considered objectionable (as I read the text carefully), and were so considered by the promoters of the bill, I believe, but of course it is a difficult matter to so frame a bill that all points may be equally well

St. Johnsbury Caledonian | really necessary? The teachers and educators in our state are not malefactors. cators in our state are not malefactors; they are ladies and gentlemen, and many of them are devout christians. It is not to be supposed for one moment that they desire anything but the best good of the children and youth under their care. If it be true that they do not care for the welfare of the children, they are not fit for the places they occupy, and we are culpable for having placed

I was much impressed by the remark of a teacher reported at State Convention, and this is not an exceptional case but expresses a very general condition. She said, "I could not teach scientific temperance, even if required, because I have had no training for this." Does not this remark point out the very obstacle in our paths? Many of our teachers have had no preparation for the work which we lay out for them to do.

It is because of this fact that our National Executive has arranged for our National Superintendent of S. T. I. work to make a tour of the whole country from Maine to Oklahoma, and to speak in Normal schools and Colleges, present-ing this important branch of education in her own inimitable way.

If the young men and women who are to go out in a few years as teachers, are thoroughly trained in the proper methods of teaching Physiology and Hygiene as presented to the world today by men of science, we shall have no trouble with the question of Scientific Temperance Instruction in the public schools of the future; the question will settle itself.

Nothing, it seems to me, can possibly be gained by antagonizing the educators. We need their co-operation and we must trust and believe in them.

Men are burning the midnight oil bring before the world the results of their recent investigations along scientific lines, and valuable additions are being made almost from day to day. These discoveries are within the reach of all, and I earnestly recommend to parents as well as teachers the new books just issued by Dr. Gulick,-the Gulick series. -I have had the pleasure of examining them and find them delightful. They are written in the most charming manner, and while easily comprehended by the little ones, are just as entertaining to older people. Dr. Gulick needs no recommendation; he is well known throughout the State of Vermont.

Whatever he brings before the public is well worth our attention. These books are entirely new, and that is an important consideration. All books pertaining to Scientific Temperance must be strictly up to date, for reasons already stated, viz: Medical men tell us that a book ten years old is practically uscless in their profession, such strides have been made n the science of medicine during the last decade, and the same is true in other sciences. We are fortunate, indeed, to have such wonderful helps just at this critical time in our history as an organ-

"Hello Central."

The Western Electric Company, whose products are used by all the principal telephone companies in the world, has just issued a clever booklet about a man and a telephone. The man is the first citizen of the United States, and the six excellent portraits of Mr. Taft represent him at the telephone receiving the news of his election. The story is all told in the smile which begins as he first hears the news and broadens out when he is assured that he is elected. Beneath each picture is a quotation from Mr. Taft's public addresses. The first one, which here follows, will serve as a sample of the high quality of the quotations: "All the good in the world cannot be attained at one breath. We must achieve what we can at the time we can, and must let other aims and objects of I had never familiarized myself with the highest good abidea different oppor-

Results vs. Extravagant Abuse. An Able and Vigorous Defense of the Last Legislature.

Some of us thought the Herald was a little severe at times," said a member of the late Legislature. "but, after reviewing the session laws, we believe the half was never told." "Your editorial on 'The Tact of the Late Legislature' in my opinion is the best that has yet been written by any paper in the state," says another member. And yet Governor Prouty, Chairman Williams, and the Bennington Banner continue to defend the indefensible.-Rutland Herald.

As a rule self-respecting newspapers refuse to print anonymous attacks but the Herald is so ready to lend its aid to anything tending to defame the legislature of 1908 that it jumps at anything no matter how fantastic and absurd. If the Herald will give the name of his informant the state can judge as to whether his opinion is to be taken seriously. At any rate he is mistaken. No man can look over the printed acts of the legislature of 1908 and say honestly what the Herald claims to quote. In fairness to the much abused legislature of 1908 the Banner asks its readers to glance over the following list of the more important laws enacted at the recent session: No. 7. Providing for the proper ventilation of the statehouse, the need of which has been recognized for twenty

No. 11. Creating the state board of agriculture and forestry. The most important act of any Vermont legislature in many years, in the opinion of many, Provides a plan and establishes a way to add millions of dollars to the value and productiveness of Vermont real estate during the next fifty years.

No. 5. Providing for the inspection of nursery stock brought into the state. Had the act been in force earlier it might have kept out the San Jose scale. In the future there will be other pests just as dangerous and the time to guard against them is in advance.

No. 22 to 49. Doing away with the expensive county examiner system and putting the examination of teachers in control of the state superintendent of education. Providing for an efficient state board of education. Providing for more and better trained teachers through the establishment of a department of pedagogy for Middlebury college and by increasing the appropriation for the normal schools providing they raise the standard of their work. Making a start toward manual training schools, one of the great needs of modern education. Enlarging and extending the opportunity to secure expert supervision our country schools. Making the child labor laws simpler and more easily

No. 50. Appropriating $10,000 an-nually for the State Medical college. This college, now one of the best in the country, was faced by the necessity of owering its standard or shutting its doors had not the state come to its aid. No. 52. Further helping the towns in securing libraries and adding to those already in existence. No. 97. Increasing the appropriation for permanent state highway building from $50,000 to $75,000 a year.

No. 99. Providing a uniform system of taxing automobiles for the benefit of schools in the district open the fall term | the roads which they injure. The law is August 30 except in Walden where they faulty in that it does not assess enough tax on the high priced cars but it is a step in the right direction.

No. 115. To prevent fire insurance companies taking advantage of insured persons in settling fire losses.

No. 116. The Public service commission law. This provides a tribunal to whom any person or community wrong ed by a railroad, express, telephone, telegraph, electric light, power or gas com-pany can appeal, and is designed to pro-tect the public from the greediness of corporations. It took the better part of an entire legislative session in the great state of New York and all the strength Governor Hughes and his friends could muster to get through a law there not as good as this one.

No. 118. Giving cities and villages the power to compel a pure milk supply, This act is second to none ever passed in Vermont in importance. Where enforced in other states and cities it has reduced the death rate among infants from ten to twenty per cent. This act alone is worth all and more than the recent session of the legislature cost the state of Vermont.

No. 119. To prevent the spread of tuberculosis by creameries through mixing tuberculous milk with pure milk and then using it promiscuously in feeding young stock, pigs, etc. The act compels sterilizing all this milk through heating it before it goes back to be fed. This act is of the highest importance but has been lost sight of through the attention paid to less important things.

No. 123. To prevent the adulteration of paints. This act will be of thousands of dollars benefit annually to Vermont property owners.

No. 126. To increase the efficiency of the Vermont National guard and giving this state as good a system as any in the

No. 137 to 147. Simplifying the trout fishing laws so as to make them much nore capable of enforcement as violators are likely to find when the season opens. No. 151. Regulating the practice of nedicine and surgery so as to curtail the langers from quacks and swindlers.

No. 159 to 161. Increasing the effectiveness of the pure food laws. No. 178. Putting sheriffs on a salary basis and reducing the fee abuse. Graft-ing deputies who have been working the state for fees will kick strenuously about this act, but the state will be the gainer and honest officers will get full pay for actual service. No. 201. To prevent tax collectors rom making excessive costs for taxpay-

No. 205. To provide for the celebraovery of Lake Champlain. It is a wise a a self advertising celebration like this s the first time in Vermont since 1891. No. 219. CASTORIA For Infants and Children. The Kind You Have Always Bought The printed copies of the acts of the session have now been pretty generally circulated among the voters of the state but comparatively tew will ever take the trouble to read them. The same is also true of the newspaper editors. We doubt if many of those editors who have so violently assailed the recent legislature have actually read the acts through which that legislature can best be

Reckless and flamboyant criticism has misled the people into a wrong judgment of the recent session. The Banner is accused of being an apologist for the legislature. It is not. It recognizes the fact that it is open to censure in some respects. Through two or three of the most asinine errors of commission and omission it obscured a record of actual good accomplished second to none in the history of the state. For these shortcomings, foolish or wicked, according to the standpoint of the critic, it is proper to apply the lash for the sake of the lesson it will be to future legislatures, but the wholesale condemnation that has been heaped upon the legislature, partially in honest ignorance of the real truth and partially through a reckless sensationalism and desire to discredit the Republican party leaders of the state is, in our opinion, a lamentable feature of the present situation in Vermont.

The detractors of the last legislature are fond of holding up the legislature of 1906 as a paragon of virtue in perform-ance. What are the facts? Here is a list of the more important acts of the legis-

Freeing deposits in savings banks from taxation except that paid to the state This was expected to provide money that could be borrowed on real estate mortgage at five per cent. but failed to work out that way.

Providing a system for the expert supervision of schools. A splendid advance in school legislation.

A child labor and truancy law that is nighly creditable to the state and to the egislature that enacted it. Providing for a permanent school fund, largely through taking away the United States deposit money from towns, many of which could not afford to pay.

New supreme and superior court sysem. A system more satisfactory than the old one, but which is costing the state $50,000 a year more than the one that preceded it. Increasing the powers of the state highway commissioner and extending the usefulness of the department.

The weekly payment law, the best act of the legislature of 1906. Enlarging the powers of the railroad

Providing for a gradual reduction of the number of grade crossings. Improving, amending and extending the pure food and drug law.

The diseased meat law. To prevent bucket shop gambling To compel prisoners in county jails to

Also an act to compel corporations to show their books. Likewise a new charter for the city of Surlington factory and had to be replaced by another at the last session. This record of the session of 1906 is a most creditable one, but it had its faults and failures as did that of 1908 and as will have all that follow it.

Censure the legislature of 1908 if you must, but do not be so unfair and untruthful as to deny that it did many creditable things .- [Bennington Banner.

With Rod and Gun.

The annual publication of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad gives one the 'spring fever" and is full of beautiful pictures of the famous hunting and fishing preserves of northern Maine. It is a veritable guidebook of the whole region, and anyone contemplating a summer's outing should send ten cents to the passenger department of this road and secure a copy. The pictures of "fish, flesh and fowl" are remarkably lifelike as they are all taken on the spot and not manufactured for the occasion. Following about 100 pages of reading matter is a large line of advertisements that give just the information the sportsman wants. The general passenger agent of this road is George M. Houghton of Bangor who began his railroading on the old Passumpsic railroad at Lyndonville. Mr. Houghton is very pleasantly remembered by many in this section, and aside from his success in running a railroad he is certainly to be congratulated upon publishing such a valuable and attractive booklet.

The American Workman.

The American workingman must live in a house, not a hut; he must wear good clothes and eat wholesome and nourishing food. He is an integral part of the municipality, the state and the nation; subject to no fetters of class or caste; neither pauper, nor peasant, nor serf, but a free American citizen. He has the ballot; and if it were possible, it would be dangerous, to degrade him. The country stands pledged to give him education, political power and a higher form of life than foreign nations accord their laborers, and he must be sustained by higher rates of wages than those of Europe, Our industries, operated by American citizens, must be freed from foreign interference, and organized into a distinct American system, which will ion of the 300th anniversary of the dis- exact some temporary sacrifices, but result in general prosperity and true hing for a state to occasionally indulge | national independence. His eskimo dogs were so savage that often in a fight they killed one of their number and often delayed travel by becoming uncontrollable.

The reindeer proposition was one long desired and the formation of the New England Grenfell association in Boston, of which Miss Emma E. White of 14 Beacon Street is secretary, gave impetus to the carrying out of the plan. Dr. Grenfell had spoken in Pittsfield a number of times and there were many interested in his work. The Sunday school of the Pilgrim Memorial church volunteered its aid guaranteeing the payment of the cost and transportation of a reindeer from Norway to Labrador. Greylock has been broken to harness and is especially useful to Dr. Grenfell, who has made a pet of the reindeer. He is one of the pair which Dr. Grenfell drives in his mission work.

Many of the deer have been scattered at various places up and down the coast and the natives have taken excellent care of the animals. From the number now in Labrador it is expected that the villages all through Dr. Grenfell's country will be supplied. Those who have followed the experiment hold that nothing Dr. Grenfell has done in Ladrabor equals bringing in the reindeer for the general good of his people.
